ahead of schedule to the contributions of mature workers.

Launched in 1998, the National Prime Time Awards Program has become our nation's premier older worker recognition event. In addition to recognizing employers of the year, it also honors America's Oldest Worker, identified by a nationwide search and outstanding older workers selected by each state, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico.

Green Thumb, Inc., an American's oldest not-for-profit organization, is America's leader in older worker training, employment and community service. Its mission is to strengthen families, communities, and the nation by providing older and disadvantaged individuals with opportunities to learn, work and serve others. Founded in 1963, Green Thumb was first chartered to aid the "green thumbs" of retired farmers to improve our nation's parks and highways. The four-state pilot project soon evolved into one of the most innovative and cost-effective of all workforce initiatives. The Senior Community Service Employment Program. Over its history, Green Thumb has expanded its services to bring workforce opportunities each year to more than 725,000 mature individuals in 44 states and Puerto Rico. Green Thumb, Inc., receives funding under grants and contracts with the U.S. Department of Labor and approximately 75 state and local governments. Visit Green Thumb's website at www.greenthumb.org.

Green Thumb is looking for 2001 Outstanding Workers

Because the business community is integral to the success of older workers, Green Thumb, Inc., will recognize three outstanding employers representing small, medium and large businesses during its Natural Prime Time Awards activities in Washington, D.C. in September 2001. These awards acknowledge employers who have broken from traditional human resource models and developed exemplary programs in retaining and recruiting mature workers," says Green Thumb's president and CEO Andrea Wooten.

Criteria include providing positive older worker images, developing aging friendly workplaces, targeting recruitment of older workers, retaining older employees, creating innovative programs for older workers and demonstrating how their commitment to hiring older workers has made a difference to the company. Companies may apply for consideration or be nominated by an outside party. Applications may be by download or submitted online at www.greenthumb.org. Completed applications may also be mailed to Green Thumb, Inc., P.O. Box A, Beattyville, KY 41311 no later than May 1, 2001.

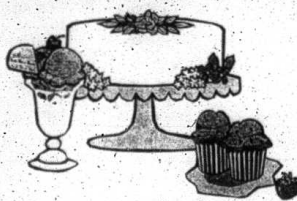

Last year's national winners include: Gulf South Supply of Houston, Texas in the Under 50 Employee category; Poorman-Douglas of Beavertown, Oregon in the Under 1000 Employee category; and Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., headquartered in Bentonville, Arkansas in the 1000+ Employees category. The U.S. Census Bureau received special recognition. "We appreciate the leadership of each of these companies in recognizing the value that seniors bring to the workplace," Wooten says.

John Denny, president of Gulf South Supply calls older workers a "secret weapon" in the success of his business. Poorman-Douglas believes older workers are a reliable and respected segment of its workforce and company culture. Company president Jeff Baker told members of the Senate Special Committee on Aging that employing older workers is "win-win." Wal-Mart views seniors as associates who bring both work and life experiences to their positions—from the famed people greeters to company executives and board members. More than half of the Census 2000 workforce was 50+ and the Census Bureau credits its ability to complete the monumental task of the census-
