Filing for county offices has begun

By: Richard Anderkin
The Primary Election in Rockzastle County may be over six months away, but that hasn't kept local residents from filing for office.
The first day to file was November '7th, the day after the General Election in many parts of the country.
On that day, William Denny, 36 of Chestnut Ridge filed for magistrate in the second district and Wayne Lear, 72, of Brindle Ridge filed for the office of Sheriff.

Administrator Margaret Offiut also filed for re-election on that day. The next day, Gary Wade Mink, also a Republican filed for office.

On November 9th, incumbent County Court Clerk Norma Houk filed forre-election and November 10 the only Democrat county official, first district magistrate folly Holbrook Holled for ne-election and November 10 the for the only Democrat county official, first district magistrate folly Holbrook Holled for ne-election 4th, incumbent Jailer Ames Miller riled, as did incumbent County Attorney Jeff Burdette.

The table is certainly set for some interesting county races, as "well as school board races and city council races, including the Mayor in each of the three cities.

Also in May of 2002, State Representative Danny Ford, District Judges Mike Henry and Walter

McGuire and U.S. Representative Harold Rogers, will also have to run. Countywide office holders have always received more than pauper's pay, but with recent changes in the state legislature, pay in most county offices is good - really good for Rockcastle County, considering the average family income.

For example, if you are the Rockeastle County Judge-Executive state law requires that you be paid, more than any other elected county official.

The state determines that amount of compensation on the number of residents in the county.

If you are the County Judge-Executive in Rockcastle County you will be paid 565,305 a year, plus $300 a month for expenses. All of that is of course subject to state, federal and local taxes
