National Infant Immunization Week is April 14th - 20th

Immunization is one of the most effective ways of protecting your children against disease. Since the introduction of Vaccines, the level of vaccine-preventable disease has been reduced by more than 95%.

Babies need vaccinations to protect against several dangerous diseases. Dipheria, Tetauns, Pertussis, Polio, Measles, Mümps, Rubella, Chickenpox, Hepatitis B and Hib-Meningitis. Each year, children who are not fully protected against these diseases become sick and some disc. A series of vaccines by the age of 2. diseases become sick and some die. A series of vaccines by the age of 2 can protect against these diseases. This requires multiple doises of vac-cine given in about five visits to a health care provider.
