

Tips To Conserve Water Around Your Home

By Hazel Jackson
County Extension Agent for Family and Consumer Sciences

Water is essential to some of our daily lives. We need water for health, hygiene, cooking and recreation. Our agricultural industry requires water to raise plants and animals. Other industries use it to produce goods and services. Water shortages and contamination concerns remind us that water is a limited resource we must conserve and protect. In addition, conservation helps us save money and energy required to pump water to our homes, heat water we consume, and dispose of water we've used.

By following some simple conservation practices around the home, you can ensure your family will have a bountiful supply of good, clean water.

The shower and bathtub are major water users in many homes. To conserve water and energy, install low-flow shower heads and faucet-flow restrictors. A low-flow shower head uses two to three gallons of water per minute, compared to about five gallons a minute for an older shower head.

• Limit your shower to five minutes or less. Short showers use less water than a tub bath, but only five inches of water in the tub.

• While waiting for shower or faucet water to heat up, collect the water to use for household cleaning chores and to water plants.

• Flush the toilet sparingly because each flush can consume three to seven gallons of water. Don't use the toilet as a wastebasket or airway.

• Check toilets for leaks. Put a few drops of food coloring in the toilet tank, wait 15 minutes, and check the bowl. If coloring appears in the bowl, you have a leak.

• Periodically remove the tank lid to be sure all mechanisms are properly working. A broken flush valve causes many toilet leaks. You can find an inexpensive, easy-to-install valve at hardware, building supply and other stores.

• Turn off the water while brushing your teeth, washing your hands or shaving. Before brushing teeth, wet your brush and fill a glass of water to rinse your mouth and brush. After wetting your hands, turn off the water. Soap your hands and then turn on the water to rinse them.

• When shaving, fill the bathroom sink with a few inches of water to rinse your razor.

• Use your automatic washing machine or dishwasher for full loads. The washing machine can use about 35 gallons of water; the dishwasher, about 25 gallons a cycle. If the washing machine has a water-level control, adjust it to the load size. Select shorter dishwasher cycles when possible to use less water. • Read the manufacturer's directions before using the permanent press cycle on your washing machine. This cycle might fill the tub an extra time which can increase water use by 15 to 20 extra gallons.

• Rinse fruits and vegetables in a small pan of water instead of under running water.

• Select the proper size pan for the amount of food you are cooking. Large pans require more water to cook the food.

• Also, cook food in as little water as possible to conserve water and food's nutrient value.

• Use tight-fitting lids to prevent water from boiling away.

• When hand-washing dishes, use a pan of soapy water for washing and a second pan of hot water for rinsing. Pan rinsing requires less water than rinsing under a running faucet.

• Keep a covered bottle of drinking water in the refrigerator so you don't have to let water run to become cold. Shake the bottle before drinking to aerate water and keep it from tasting flat.

• To conserve water, use your garbage disposal sparingly.

• Wipe up small spills on the floor as they occur to reduce the number of times you need to use a wet mop.

• Vacuum carpets and rugs regularly, so you don't need to shampoo them as often.

• Do different household cleaning chores at the same time to conserve water. First clean lightly soiled surfaces such as mirrors, walls, windows, patio or deck. A hose can be used to clean the entire car and then rinse.

• When washing the car, don't leave the hose running. Instead, fill a bucket with warm, soapy water, sponge the entire car and then rinse.

• An alternative is to use a hose with an automatic shutoff.

• Use a broom instead of a hose to clean your driveway, steps, sidewalk, patio or deck. A hose can be used to clean the entire car and then rinse.

• Don't let children play with the hose. Although this is fun for kids, it wastes a lot of water. A half-inch garden hose uses more than 600 gallons of water in just one hour.
