Ms. Sparks said that it may not have anything to do with it, but she thinks that because she likes conversation, a lot of it, her lungs stayed strong which helped in her recovery.

She had surgery in November and on Valentine's Day of the next year she worked in her flower shop for eleven hours.

is initiating the reorganization. Burton, who just retired recently from the Youth Commission on Nation Affairs (CONA) in North Carolina is very excited about the club's future.

"The Young Republicans have a history here in Rockcastle County, and so we already have named recognition on the state level," Burton said. "The upcoming elections, and recent events politically on the state level, has caused my generation of young people to desire more involvement. We want to work hand in hand with our local party leadership," he added.

The Kentucky Young Republican Federation allows enrollment of young Republicans between the ages 18-40. Jeff Burdette, County Attorney, who was Kentucky's Young Republican of the Year in 1993, has agreed to be the club's sponsor, according to Burton.

"We intend to allow any high school student to be involved, but until they turn 18, they will be classified as pending members," Burton said.

Sign ups for the new Young Republican Club will be available at the Little Worlds Fair in Brodhead next week, with membership costs at $10.00 per person. They are also encouraging young Republicans to send a check or money order along with name, address, e-mail address and age to: Rockcastle Young Republicans Club, PO Box 3197, Mt. Vernon, KY 40456.

The first official meeting is expected to be held in September.
