Back-to-back wins for Busch

HAMPTON, Ga. — Kurt Busch won his second straight NASCAR Winston Cup Series race Sunday after rain cut short the NAPA 500 at Atlanta Motor Speedway after 248 laps, and Tony Stewart increased his lead for the championship.

Joe Nemechek finished second, followed by Dale Jarrett, Tony Stewart, and Dale Earnhardt Jr. Rain forced a two and one-half hour delay in the scheduled 325 lap race with Tony Stewart leading. When cars were allowed back on the track, Stewart brought his No. 14 Home Depot Pontiac back into the pits because of two loose lug nuts. When green flag racing resumed on lap 46, he was 32nd.

Joe Nemechek was the new leader. During lap 138, rookie Jimmie Johnson bit wall and being out another caution. All the leaders pitted. Back on the track it was Nemechek, and Jeff Gordon.

One lap later, Jeff Gordon passed Nemechek and held the lead all the leaders pitted again on lap 202. When green flag racing continued on lap 208, Kurt Busch was the new leader, followed by Nemechek, Gordon, Stewart and Dale Earnhardt Jr. Johnson spun his No. 48 again on lap 232, and all the leaders pitted once again.

When the green flag was given, Busch was leading followed by Stewart, Nemechek, Dale Jarrett, and Dale Earnhardt. Nemechek was able to get under Stewart, but was no match for Busch's No. 97 Sharpie Ford.

NASCAR officials threw the yellow flag. You don't have to pay for student financial aid information. KHEAA (800) 928-8926 www.kheaa.com

Busch, who also won last Sunday at Martinsville, didn't let the wet track keep him from cutting the customary daylength after winning for the third time in his career in a Ford owned by Roush Racing.

"I was just a matter of getting out front, and my crew did it for me again," Busch said. "We just kept digging and made a little adjustment at the end. We were a little bit off and we had a great spot. It just feels awesome."

McKreynolds remembers Dale Earnhardt & Davey Allison

Larry McKreynolds has served as crew chief for NASCAR's best, including Dale Earnhardt and Ernie Ivan, but his best memories center around his one and one-half seasons with Dale Earnhardt.

Two years ago, McKreynolds left his job with Richard Childress Racing for a job with Fox Sports as a television analyst and broadcaster, a job that he says is demanding, but very rewarding.

"My family really wasn't what was into racing when I was growing up," he said. "I did have an uncle that raced, but it wasn't until an aunt of mine started running a car in the street stock division at Birmingham International Raceway that I became interested in it."

"Her husband ran a junkyard and I got a job working in it part-time while going to high school. Fortunately, or unfortunately, racing is like a disease. When it gets in your blood stream, no matter what level, you're hooked."

"By that time, I knew racing was what I wanted to do for a living," he continued. "But it's a tough sport to break into. It's hard, bumpy, and a very discouraging road to follow."

"You've got to wind up at the right place at the right time, and fortunately, that happened to me in 1980."

McKreynolds read a classified ad in a NASCAR newsletter about a new race car team that was starting in Greenville, South Carolina. He made the phone call, and two weeks later moved to South Carolina.

After working for several small teams, he landed a job as crew chief for Kenny Bernstein's team. During the next six years, the team had several drivers with only moderate success.

He left Bernstein at the beginning of 1991 and moved to Robert Yates Racing, where he teamed up with a young Alabama driver named Davey Allison.

The move put Larry McKreynolds on the NASCAR map. McKreynolds went on to help Allison gain 11 Winston Cup victories before his death in a helicopter crash at Talladega in 1993.

"In my book, Davey Allison was one of the most awesome race car drivers there ever was," he said. "There's no telling how many races and championships he would have won if he hadn't been killed in that crash."

He continued with Robert Yates until the beginning of the 1997 season. While attending the NASCAR exhibition race in Japan in 1996, he was asked by Richard Childress Dale Earnhardt to join the No. 3 GM Goodwrench team.

"It was the toughest decision of my life to leave Robert Yates," he continued. "But when the seven-time Winston Cup champion - Dale Earnhardt is all but begging you to come work with him on his race car, you have to take a hard look at it."

"The one and one-half years that I worked with Dale Earnhardt wasn't anything like either of us expected. A lot of people thought we were fighting, and weren't friends, but that was not true."

"I think we were too much a like."
